COLUMBUS, Ohlo, May 3 (AP).—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota held a slim margin over Sen. George S. Sen. Humphrey was leading the race for the 38 at-large seats. He also led for 42 delegates in nine congressional districts. Sen. McGovern led 11 districts with 55 delegates.

Hué Gripped by Panic, Deserters Loot, Burn

By Sydney H. Schanberg

HUE, South Vietnam, May 3 (NYT).—The fabric of life in this city appeared to be disintegrating today, with at least 150,000 persons fleeing to the south on foot, hy truck and in river flotillas of leaky sampans as the North Vietnamese pushed closer.

The government of Thua Thien province, of which Hué is the capital, was in the process of collapsing, and signs of anarchy began to permeate the city. South Vietnamese Army deserters from the scattered 3d Division, which abandoned the northern city of Quang Tri to the North Vietnamese without a fight on Monday, roamed through Hué today, looting, intimidating and firing at persons who displeased them. Automatic-weapons bursts and sniper fire crackled all dey es rival factions of 3d Division deserters clashed with each other.

Neither the city police nor the military police were doing much to try to stem the rampage, for the soldiers, with their automatic rifles and grenades, are much more heavily armed.

"Right now, It's everyone for himself," said a despondent Hué

"We're trying desperately to empen the panic," said an dampen American adviser, "trying to get the local government to form an emergency committee to keep essential services going - police, health, feeding the refugees. I've got my fingers in the dike, but I've got more holee than fingers." A Suggested Punishment

Of the deserters, he said: "They ought to shoot them."

Last night, the deserters—who apperently number in the thousands—set fire to the city's sprawling central marketplace during a wild, drunken gurlight with another military unit.

One report said the other unit was composed of South Vietnamese marines, who are the only government troops fighting well on the northern front and who have been ashamed and angry over the headlong flight of the 3d Division.

The 3d Division deserters are also angry-at their officers, who they say abandoned them in Quang Tri, 32 miles north of Hué, and left them to find their way out of the North Vietnamese encirclement. Many were penniless and had not eaten for two days when they reached Hué yesterday, and they told friends that they had set the fire to express their rage at their officers.

The fire, which spread no farther than the market, burned spectacularly all night-lighting both the sky and the adjocent Perfume River as It gutted acres of small shops and buckled the steel-and-concrete main market building.

This morning, as the market still smoldered and occasionally flickered into flame again, scavengers and looters both civilian and military - roamed through the ruins, which were littered with the brass of expended cartridge shells.

Old Woman's Bage An old woman, afraid to resurrect her smashed vegetable stall, shouted bitterly at looters nearby: "Why are you taking things that don't belong to you?" They just smiled sheepishly at her. A family of three was banging away with steel bars at a locked metal chest to try to get at what might be inside. A dozen people calmly looted a rice shop, shoveling the foodstuff into sacks and boxes.

A smiling government political indoctrination worker, clad in his black uniform, strolled off with several sacks of food and clothing slung over his shoulder. A lieutenant from a command unit watched the scene, sitting on his parked Honda motorbike. Asked why the army did not stop the looting, ha replied muldly: "It is not our job."

When it was pointed out that soldiers had started the fire, he said: "I was not there." On the open second floor of the main market building, the naked body of an old woman lay in a corner of the large hall She had apparently been raped and then shot. The marketplace was crucial to the food supply of Hue. No eggs or bread were available today at the rundown Huong Giang Hotel, the city's hest, where most of the large international press corps is staying. North Vietnamese forces pushed a little closer to Hué today. The Communist forces apparently

WASHINGTON, May 3 (Reuters).—Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's foreign-affairs adviser, was reported to have attended a White House briefing today on the Vietnam war. The report dampened speculation that he was in Paris for secret peace talks.

WASHINGTON, May 3 (WP). -The United States is presenting to the Soviet Union a proposal for a strategic arms limitation treaty that would freeze at existing levels the number of landbased and submarine-based offensive missiles and provide for two anti-ballistic missile installations in each country.

The new proposal was worked out following what the White House called "confidential exchanges" between President Nixon and the Soviet Communist party chief, Leonid I. Brezhnev.

A White House announcement Monday night of "a major advance" toward an agreement indicated that the terms of this new proposal had already been dispated that its terms will be acceptable to Moscow.

The chief U.S. negotiator.

Gerard Smith, was carrying instructions to present this proposal when he returned to Helsinki yesterday from Washington. The White House expressed confidence Monday that Mr. Smith's counterpart, Vladimir S. Semyonov also would be receiving new instructions from his government. Secret Meetings Reported

Crucial Session Is Scheduled Today in Paris Peace Talks

By Jonathan C. Randal

PARIS, May 3 (WP).—The Vietnam peace negotiators are scheduled to bold a potentially crucial official session tomorrow amid unconfirmed reports that secret talks have already resumed here between the United States and North Vietnam.

The most detailed report, published on the front page of the Paris evening newspaper France-Soir, brought prompt denial by both State Department and American delegation spokesmen concerning its purported U.S. secret offer of a week's truce to be followed by a general cease-fire. But although both spokesmen labeled the details of the France-Soir article totally without foundation, they declined to comment on the newspaper's report that secret talks had resumed.

This U.S. government stand was in keeping with long-standing ordere to avoid all comment on secret talks, a practice which President Nixon has violated twice in revealing a series of such meetings stretching from 1968 to

The France-Soir story, believed to be based on Vietnamese sources, did not say whether Henry A. Kissinger, the President's national security affairs adviser, represented the United States at new secret talks, Early Secret Talks

Mr. Kissinger held a series of fruitless secret talks, starting in 1969, with Le Duc Tho, the North Vietnam Polithuro member who returned here Sunday and announced that he would "continue" negotiations with the United States as a "counsellor" to Hanoi's titular delegation chief, Xuan Thuy.

However, in view of the close news media watch on Mr. Kissinger-and reports that he is in Washington-another American official may have conducted the secret talks, if indeed the

5-Week Boycott

The United States last week agreed to end its five-week-old boycott of the formal sessions. But American Ambas;ador William J. Porter said that the United States was giving the Communists one more week to end the North Vietnamese invasion of South Vietnam. He warned of a possible new suspension

Since that demand and threat, the fall of Quang Tri and the push toward Hué have been a clear rebuff to Mr. Porter's warning that "it will not be practical to hold meetings if you continue to refuse to deal with the substance of both the present invasion and general problems of peace."

The Communists could belo the United States get off the hook on which it positioned itself. They could do this hy presenting rejiggered peace proposals, a common practice following Mr. Tho's previous returns to Paris. Even such "new proposals" were identical in substance to the old plans, the United States could then schedule further formal sessions on the grounds that the new formulation warranted "serious"

But if the United States agrees tomorrow to schedule yet another formal negotiating session in the face of the continuing Communist push, there un-doubtedly will be speculation that the Nixon administration has been forced to eat its intransigent words or that secret talks have been held, warranting some public accommodation

The United States in effect dislike of the stalemated pro forma public sessions in hopes that real progress could be made in secret counters, the only forum Washington believes can produce

The Pentagon spokesman added that the logistics team would also assess the equipment of the remaining American troops.

The logistics team may recommend more military aid, or it may find that no further equipment is needed for the Saigon forces. But if it does find that more complex weaponry is required, more American advisers will have to be sent to train the South Vietnamese in its use.

To date. Pentagon officials have tried to avoid giving the South Vietnamese the highly complicated and expensive weaponry U. S. forces rely on, but which the Saigon forces are not equipped to use or keep in repair, and Mr. Friedheim indicated that this policy would continue if at all possible.

"It is our continuing intention to provide the South Vietnamese with what they need," he told newsmen, "and not to overburden them with equipment and supplies which could not be effectively The current state of the war and the abilities of the South Vietnamese troops also provided the main topic this morning for the weekly briefing of Republican congressional leaders at the White House.

REYRJAVIK, Iceland, May 3 (UPI).—U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers flew to London today for talks with British leaders after negotiations with Icelandic government officials Mr. Rogers, who arrived here yesterday, left after lunching with Iceland's President Kris-tian Eldjarn and having talks with Premier Olafur Johannesson and Foreign Minister Einar He arrived in London this evening and will bold talks with British leaders tomorrow, Earlier today an estimated 300 students, chanting anti-American slogans, prevented Mr. Rogers from visiting the Icelandic Manuscript Institute to look at handvritten manuscripts from the 15th and 16th centuries.

The demonstrators, carrying placards denouncing U.S. involvement in Indochina and shouting "Rogers, go home," blocked the entrance and forced Mr. Rogers and Mr. Agustsson to return to Mr. Rogers's hotel. Later, his departure was 30 minutes late because he had to go to the air port by a side road to avoid 100 other demonstrators.

The American's talks here involved future U.S. use of the NATO air base at Keflavik as we'll as Iceland's decision to unilaterally extend its 12-mile fishing limit to 50 miles by dom for each country to change the mix of its land and sea-based missiles. The proposal suggests a complicated formula. But, essentially, it would allow each country to retire some launchers and replace them with others, even shifting between land and seabased missiles. Both countries, however, must remain within the overall limit on the number of launchers. A small missile could not be exchanged for a supermissile, however. The proposal would allow for modernization of the arsenals of both countries.

At the time of signature, the proposed agreement would ratify Soviet superiority in the number of missile launchers but not in the number of warheads. According to the U.S. Defense Department, by mid-1973 the Soviet Union was expected to have 2,500 individual warheads compared with 5,700 for the United States.

The agreement would allow the Russians to close the warheads gap, but it would not allow the United States to close the launcher gap.

The United States is currently adding to its warhead arsenal by adding MIRVs (multiple independently targeted re-entry vehicles) to existing Minutemen and submarine launchers. The United States plans to fit multiple warheads on 550 of its 1,000 Minutemen. So far, it has completed work on 150 of these. The Polaris missile can carry 10 to 14 warheads and each U.S. missilefiring aubmarine can carry 16 launchers.

Saigon Government Sh. U.S. Aides Are Pessimish

By Craig R. Whitney SAIGON, May 3 (NYT).—The loss of South Vietnam's northernmost province and the col-lapse of two of its combat divisions in the last week have brought the government to a perilous stage. Both American have unexpectedly proved un-equal to the task of defending it.

gains in the Mekong Delta and in provinces west and northwest of Saigon.

What has been the Saigon government'e response to the deepening crisis? President Nguyen Van Thieu has gone on national television only once to prace the nation for what lies ahead. On April 5 he said: "This is the decisive moment, where the survival or loss of our country is at stake. The present battle is the decisive battle, the outcome of which will determine the loss or survival of the people of South Vietnam."

Since then he has maintained a puzzling silence amid mounting evidence that for many warweary people the government's guarantees of security and military victory sound bollow.

.. Not Many Options The options of South Vietnam and of the United States in the fourth year of U.S. troop withdrawals are severely limited. The South Vietnamese have committed their entire etrategic reserve to the three fronts, and although they can hold the North Vietnamese between thrusts, they have proved unable to halt renewed attacks in the northern provinces and in the highlands, Since President Nixon has publicly ruled out the use of U.S. ground forces to rescue their allies, the principal option available is bombing. The administra-tion has carried out saturation B-52 raids on targets deep in North Vietnam for the first time in the war, but so far its retaliation raids have been limited in scope and duration; they could become more intense if the administration chose to make them

The only recent raids on Hanoi and Halphong were made on April 16. The last time B-52s struck in North Vietnam was on April 24. But, an American general said, "You baven't seen the .... last of that yet."

Even the Americans do not feel any longer-if, indeed, they ever did-that air power can stop the North Vietnamese offensive. "If the South Vietnamese would just hold on and establish a line as they did in An Loc," an officer said, referring to the front 60 miles north of Saigon, "and stop the enemy long enough, air strikes can take their maximum effect and maybe do some good."

The Missing Man On the other hand, an American adviser in Binh Dinh prov-ince, speaking after South Vietnamese fled rather than resist the Communist take-over of Hoaten district two weeks ago, said, "The best weapon is the guy with the M-16 on the ground, and be just isn't there."

It has become clear that a final test is under way for the American policy of "Vietnamization," which has meant turning over the ground-combet responsibilities to the South Vietnamese and withdrawing American ground continued to operate, such as forces but maintaining a strong electricity, water and telephones. presence with air power—bolstered to more than 700 warplanes this week with the arrival of a fifth aircraft carrier, the Mid-

Justice Aide to Serve At Least to Election

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP) .-The White House announced to-day that Assistant Attorney General L. Patrick Gray 3d, a longtime friend of President Nixon. will also be acting director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, at least until the November presidential election.

Mr. Gray, who has no law enforcement experience, currently is being considered by the Senate be deputy attorney general. The White House said his nomination for that post will be with-

The White House press secretary, Ron Ziegler, said Mr. Nixon will not nominate a regular FBI chief to succeed the late J. Edgar Hoover until after Nov. 7 sidered in the middle of an election year" and perhaps become the subject of "partisan debate."

Although the post of FBI director pays $42,500 a year, Mr. Ziegler said Mr. Gray, 53, will draw only $38,000 a year-his regular pay as assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's civil division.

Mr. Gray has been an assistant attorney general since Dec. 18. 1970. Earlier in the Nixon administration, he served as executive assistant to then Sec-retary of Health, Education and Velfare Robert Finch.

Critical on Press Mr. Ziegler said Mr. Nixon reached outside the ranks of the FBI to choose an acting director because he wanted someone in whom he placed 'implicit per-sonal confidence.' In response to a question, the press secretary said Mr. Nixon and Mr. Gray have been friends for 10 or 12 the prosecution's insistence on questioning Mr. Thorne about a telephone conversation he allegedly held with Miss Davis on Aug. 5, 1970, two days before the shootout and escape attempt in the Marin County Court House, which led to Miss Davis's indictment on murder, kidnap and conspiracy charges.

Mr. Thorne was attorney for Jackson, who was later killed during an alleged escape attempt at San Quentin. He contends he was also Miss Davis's attorney and argued in addition that she was working for him on Jackson's behalf and therefore the conversations were privileged.

When court opened today, Judge Arnason ruled that Mr. Thorne did not have professional privilege, but he permitted further argument on the matter, and Miss Davis was called to the stand.

This was the way ha Nobel laureste whose views on race have made him controversiel, has been notified that he will not be permitted to offer a special course for Stanford University graduate students on his theories about inheritance of intelligence.

The decision was announced Monday after a letter written a week ago was delivered to Dr. Shockley on his return to the eampus. He had sought to offer a course titled 'Dysgenic Question: New research methodology on human behavior genetics and racial difference."

In an article printed in the January issue of Phi Delta Kappan, Dr. Shockley defined dysgenics as "retrogressive evolution through the disproportionate reproduction of the genetically disadvantaged."

The decision against the course was made by Lincoln E. Moses, dean of graduate studies, but was not announced until Dr. Shockley could be informed.

described his second reason: "The level of objectivity of the proposed course is at least as troubling; the reading list is directed almost wholly to your own view; your description of the course displays it as polemical-a quality not generally objectionable in a professor's communications, but inappropriate to his classroom instruction."

Dr. Shockley received his Nobel prize in 1956 as a co-inventor of the transistor. Dean Moses said that the rules that govern Stanford faculty would not require Dr. Shockley to have permission organize and conduct a series of lectures on his ideas, or to hold a seminar in research methods. But no credit could be

The sort of statement that has made Dr. Shockley controversial is this, drawn from his article in Phi Delta Kappan:

"If, as many thinking citizens fear, our welfare programs are unwittingly, but with the noblest of intentions, selectively downbreeding the poor of our slums by encouraging their least foresighted to be most prolific, the consequences will be tragic for both blacks and whites-but proportionately so much worse for our black minority that ... the consequence may be a form of genetic enslavement that will provoke extremes of racism with agony for all citizens."

NEW YORK, May 3 (Reuters).—Two young members of the militant Jewish Defense League have been arrested on charges of harassing Soviet diplomats, including the ambassador to the United Nations, Jacob Malik

Police said Zalman Royitz, 19, and Jeffrey Glasberg, 21, were arrested yesterday after a member of the Soviet mission to the UN pointed them out as having threatened his life and family. Police said the two men were both professed members of the JDL, which has assailed the Sovist Union for its treatment of Soviet Jews and has been involved in a number of cases of harassment. Police said they were found with a car used in an incident involving the ambassador.

Russia complained to the UN yesterday that "Zionist hooligans" chased Mr. Malik'e limousine, tried to open a door when the car stopped at a traffic sign, hammered on the windows and shouted abuse at him.

It said it was the latest series of harassments of the Soviet Mission and Soviet diplomats by "fascist bands" of the "so-called Jewish Defense League." It demanded a ban on all demonstrations within 500 feet of its mission

Mr. Ilovitz and Mr. Glasbers vere charged with menacing and three counts of harassment.

N.Y. Mafia Family Member Tells FBI About Gallo Murder in and arrest the men still in the

By Nicholas Gage

NEW YORK, May 3 (NYT) .--An essociate of the Mafia family of Joseph A. Colombo sr. has turned himself in to the FBI and said that he and four other men carried out the killing of Joseph Gallo on April 7, according to law-enforcement officials.

An investigation by The New York Times has established that the informant, who is now in police custody, is Joseph Luparelli, a close associate of Joseph Yacovelli, now the acting head of the Colombo family and the man who officials believe sanctioned the Gallo murder,

The officials said that, during the last three weeks, Luparelli had given federal authorities and the New York police the following account of the events surrounding the shooting of Gallo, a Colombo rival, at Umberto's Clam House in the section of New York known as "Little Italy.

At about 4:30 a.m. on April 7, Luparelli happened to be sitting at the clam bar in Umberto's with a friend. Ten minutes later, Joseph Gallo, who was celebrating his birthday, entered with his bride of three weeks, her 10-yearold daughter, Gallo's sister, his bodyguard Peter Diapoulas, 42, and the latter's date.

Marked for Murder

When he saw Gallo, who for several months had been marked for execution by the Colombo family, Luparelli hurrled out of the restaurant.

He went to a nearby restaurant frequented by Colombo men. Luparelli asked for Yacovelli, acting head of the family since Colombo was gravely wounded last year at a rally here of the Italian-American Civil Rights League. He was told that Yacovelli was not around. Then Luparelli related what he had seen to Philip Gambino, a Colombo man, and Carmine di Blase, a former member of the Mafia family of the late Vito Genovese who reportedly had shifted to the Colombo group. The two of them telephoned Yacovelli and were told to arm themselves. Gambino and Di Biase left the restaurant briefly and returned about 5:15 with several Liparelli, two men believed to be brothers whom Luparelli has not as yet identified, Gambino and Di Biase then drove two CAIS down Mulberry Street and parked not far from Umberto's. All but one of the five entered Umberto's through the back door. Luparelli says he stayed at the wheel of one of the cars. As the four gunmen casually walked into the restaurant, Di 49, who had previously Blase. been charged with murder, pulled out a gun and opened fire.

20 Bullets Fired

About 20 bullets were fired in the next several seconds, three of them striking Gallo, who staggered mortally wounded to the street and fell to the pave-ment. The four Colombo men raced out of the restaurant and into the two waiting automobiles.

According to Luparelli, the men drove directly from Umberto's to the Manhattan apartment of Yacovelli, told him what happened and then drove to an apartment in suburban Nyack that had been rented on Yacovelli's instructions several months earlier in anticipation of a Gallo execu-

After some time at the hideout. Luparelli began to fear that the other men were planning to kill him. The fear hegan when he became violently ill after a meal and suspected that he had been poisoned. On a pretext, Luparelli left the apartment, drove to Kennedy International Airport and caught a plane to California. But Luparelli still did not feel safe. Desperate for protection. he went to an FBI office and told his story. With Luparelli in hand, California FBI agents placed a long-distance call to the then chief of New York detectives, Albert A. Seedman, and put Enparelli on the phone.

In Police Costody

Mr. Seedman at first was incredulous but, when he heard some of the details supplied by Luparelli, he asked that the informant be sent to New York. The PBI then brought him here and turned him over to the police, who have had him in custody ever since.

LONDON, May 3 (AP).—A World War II pllot won £50,000 in libel damages today against the German playwright Rolf Hochhuth, who had suggested in a play that the pilot carried out a political murder for Sir Winston Churchill and others.

The pilot, Edward Prchal, flew the Royal Air Force plane that crashed near Gibraltar on its way to Britain in 1943, taking Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, then Polish premier, to his death. The flier was the only survivor of the crash that killed Sikorski, his daughter, and two members of the British Parliament.

Giulio Andreotti said today that his interim government has prevented "guerrilla warfare" from disrupting Italy's general election campaign, which now has only two full days left to run. Mr. Andreotti told newsmen that an "enormous quantity" of arms and munitions has been turned up in police raids throughout Italy. Mr. Andreotti has headed a Christian Democratic minority government since Feb. 17, following the breakup of the centerleft coalition that nad ruled Italy since 1962. Mr. Andreotti said that the Christian Democrats would not form a post-election alliance with the "national right"-a coalition of neo-Fascists and Monarchists. Cool To Socialists

He also said that the Christian Democrats would not consider any further alliance with the Socialists, unless they took a clear stand against bringing Communists into the government. Premier Andreotti said that his government had been concerned about leftist and rightist violence but had succeeded in maintaining order throughout the campaign. "How much our preoccupation was justified can be judged from the enormous quantity of arms and munitions which have been captured in recent times by the forces of order," he said. "There was a tendency not only toward ideological warfare but toward guerrilla tactics true and proper."

The Fiat 130 is a big car with the precise good handling qualities

that normally only a small car can offer

Everybody likes big cars—big performance, big comfortable interior, big margins of safety—all the things that only size can provide.

The Fiat 130, in sedan and coupé forms, is the Italian contribution in this category. Where Italian means a tradition of great coachbuilding, styling, and engineering. Plus the fact that "Gran Turismo" is an Italian invention.

All too often, however, comfort, spaciousness and those special extra features have to be paid for— usually in terms of handling, nimbleness, and driving

Yet these are the very qualities expected of a Fiat. And that includes the Fiat 130. So we designed a big car as easy to drive and as agile as a small one. A contradiction in terms, you might say. But our designers were able to reconcile them by exceptional attention to the driver's needs, and to those features which influence the feel of the car. The steering, for example. And the suspension—independent all round—with a completely original independent rear suspension system, patented by Fiat, which achieves that rare combination—a quiet, soft ride, and road-holding up to sports car standards.

The driver's seat adjusts up and down, as well as fore and aft. So does the steering wheel. There is a hydraulic damper to eliminate road reactions through the steering wheel. And hydraulic power assistance to take the effort out of steering. A brake servo system that makes light work of stopping. A limited-slip differential (standard on the coupé, optional on the sedan) to prevent wheelspin on slippery surfaces which can be a problem with cars with the sort of power the 130 has under the hood.

But listing the outstanding features of the 130 is no substitute for trying it yourself on the road. Which is the only way of finding out that in the big car category the Fiat 130 has something special to offer.

Open-Ended War

troops that resulted in capture of Quang Tri. undertaken almost simultaneously with the trip to Paris of Hanoi Politburo member Le Duc Tho, could not have been coincidental. The military-diplomatic character of the current Communist offensive has been evident from the start. That Communist offensive, designed to improve the Communist bargaining position in Paris, is now challenging President Nixon's Vietnam policies as never before in this long and fruit-

The challenge is hardly answered by the President's rhetorical posturing of recent days. Mr. Nixon's warning in Texas that North Vietnam was "taking a very great risk"-presumably a threat to resume bombing of the Hanoi-Haiphong heartland-is not likely to have any more effect than the futila hombing itself last month and in the 1965-68 period.

What is needed now is a reappraisal of the administration policies that, since 1968, have given Vietnamization of the war and other military measures priority over efforts to negotiate peace. From the beginning, the President has held his negotiating price high nothing less than the preservation of Saigon's anti-Communist regime—on a double assumption.

One assumption behind Vietnamization was that the withdrawal of most American ground troops from Vietnam would remove the war from the forefront of political issues in the United States before November, 1972. The other assumption was that President Thieu's million-man army by 1972 could hold South Vietnam securely with American air and naval support, plus economic and arms sid. The belief was that these optimistic assumptions, if borne out, would favor Mr. Nixon's re-election and confront Hanoi with a choice between negotiating on Mr. Nixon's terms or facing four more years of war.

There never was much valid reason to accept either assumption; but in any event both are now being cruelly blown apart by the current Communist offensive. The war not only has rebounded as a political issua in tha United States, but the administra-

The strong offensive by North Vietnamese tion's war policies appear from the primaries to be losing even their former supporters. Mr. Nixon's stated assumption that South Vietnam's Army would be able to "hack it" is now being severely tested to the point that it is apparent that only American air and sea power has saved the South Vietnamese from even more devastating defeats than they have already suffered.

Hanoi's diplomatic offensive, meanwhile, is probing the essential contradiction in Mr. Nixon's two-track policy of Vietnamization and negotiation. Vietnamization of the war requires strengthening and supporting Thieu regime. The negotiation of a peace settlement requires its replacement with a compromise government acceptable

All this is certain to be affected now by the probably irreversible change in the nature of the war that has just occurred. From a civil war within South Vietnam. aided clandestinely at first, then more substantially, by Hanoi, the struggle has been transformed by the large-scale North Vietnamese crossing of the Demilitarized Zone into virtually a conventional war between the armies of both Vietnams.

The "open-ended" character of the war led Sen Mike Mansfield many years ago to urge Washington to abandon dreams of victory and seek a negotiated compromise. That advice is even sounder today.

Further delay will not improve the American bargaining position, which has declined steadily with the reduction of American forces in Vietnam. The time has come to explore seriously North Vietnam's proposal for a tripartite "government of national harmony" and Le Duc Tho's insistence in Paris Sunday that it would not "impose a 'Communist regime' in South Vietnam as Mr.

Agreement will not be easily reached on the composition and duration of a caretaker regime in Saigon to be confirmed by elections. But it is the key to a political settlement. It will still be the key when the present battles are over, even if the military stalemate can be re-established.

J. Edgar Hoover

Few, if any, men in the history of the United States have accumulated so much power and wielded it for so long as did J. Edgar Hoover, His career as a public servant spanned a fourth of the history of our nation. He was a force to be reckoned with in national affairs before two-thirds of all the citizens alive today were even born. His power and infloence, measured as such things are in Washington, far outweighed that of the men he nominally worked forthe attorneys general—and sometimes seemed to surpass even that of the Presidents, if only because he was here when they came

Mr. Hoover's great admirers—especially in his later years—we would not minimize those genuine contributions he made to the wellbeing of the country. His early fame was based, and rightly so, on his performance in taking an incompetent and corrupt investigative service and turning it into a fully professional and honorable police force. During the 1930s, when heroes were scarce and public distaste of police corruption was widespread, he filled a public need by projecting the image of the perfect con. That image lives on—tarnished somewhat by events of later years-in the awe and respect that most Americans have for the words Federal Bureau of Investigation. Throughout it all, Mr. Hoover may have made his single greatest contribution by consistently and fervently rejecting the idea of certain great expansions in the FBI's authority and jurisdiction, an idea that could have developed easily into a national police force with all the potential evils of such a system.

With all this, and more, to his credit, it is sad that Mr. Hoover held on to the power that was his so long. His failure for years to admit the existence of organized crime and they knew he would be here when they and his reluctance to accept denials of civil rights as an appropriate object of investigation for his agency are blots on the FBI's While we did not count ourselves among record. There were similar blots on his own record—the attacks on Martin Luther King, the concealment of wiretapping activities. the use of FBI dossiers for purposes other than law enforcement, the occasional forays into political and even foreign policy issues. These were mostly indiscretions of his latter years and we prefer to think of them in terms of the abuses that occur when men hold so much power for too long. It would have been better if Mr. Hoover had trained his successor and stepped aside some years ago. As it is, we hope that it will be the good he did and not the bad that lives on. -From the Daily Telegraph (London). Vietnam's Civilian Casualties

The most tragic victims of this offensive are the Vietnamese themselves. The miserable sight of vulnerable refugees streaming from one war zone to another raises questions beyond those of victory or defeat, The North Vietnamese bear much of the blame for this because of their invasion. Apparently the temptation to humiliate the Americans before they were out of the way was too great. The American reaction was predictable. Tha timing of the invasion has increased the number of civilian casualties. -- From the Guardian (London).

Nixon Defeat a Credible Possibility

By Kenneth Crawford

WASHINGTON.—For the first time this year, President Nixon's defeat for re-election has become a credible possibility. So has the presidential nomination of Sen. George McGovern by the Democratic party. So has the fall of South Vietnam and total conquest of Indochina by North Vietnamese Communism.

All these possibilities are, of course, related, And they remain only possibilities. But the way events have turned in the last few weeks suggests that their probable consequences should be

The chance of defeating Mr. Nixon gladdens the hearts of many. Nixonphobia is endemic. Some of it is reasoned but much of it is unreasoned prejudice. However come by, it is a fact of explosive political potential. Among those who consider the President's defeat eminently contemplatable is the President himself. A high administration official, identified by CBS as Secretary of the Treasury John Connally, has revealed that Mr. Nixon decided to bomb the Hanot-Halpbong area against the advice of most of his counsellors and realized when he did it that it might cost him re-election.

. A Gesture

Since this decision could have no immediate effect on the fighting in the South, it was a gesture, foolhardy or gallant, de-pending upon one's view of the world situation. It was a message, primarily for Moscow, that Mr. Nixon still considers the United States a power with objectives and principles it will not blithely abandon under pressure. It will stand by its friends with what resources it has available, in this case, air power.

If the North Vietnamese invasion of the South succeeds H Saigon is occupied, if the more than 5.000 officials, teachers and plain citizens systematically massacred in Hué when the city was invested during the 1968 Tet offensive is again the pattern of the conqueror's behavior (there is no reason to suppose that it would not be, then Mr. Nixon, as the man in charge, will be blamed. He hasn't the personal appeal that saw John Kennedy through the Bay of Pigs debacle.

It will be said, already is being that his Vietnamization policy failed. Never mind that Vietnamization was the only al-ternative open to him given the clamor for complete withdrawal maintained by most of the establishment press, the Senate For-eign Relations Committee, the academic community and the newly enfranchised youth. The only alternative that is, to an arranged takeover of Saigon by

This is where McGovern comes into it. He has been one of the most persistent clamorers and he stands to benefit from disaster in Vietnam. Humphrey and the now retired campaigner Sen. Muskie joined him in demanding capitulation even before the situation in South Vietnam deteriorated. But even so, they came lately. McGovern was there firstest with the mostest in en-

Not that it seems to make much difference at this point which of the three or Sen. Edward Kennedy, for that matter —is nominated by the Democrats.

They are all walking about the. same line not only on the war but on most domestic issues as They have all become populists eager to demonstrate that they share the discontents of the electorate. Their over-simplification of the revenue problem, for example, creates the impression, as they mean it to, that they will all but abolish taxation except for millionaires.

Talk Value

Accepted at talk value, the serious Democratic hopefuls, except for Sen. Henry Jackson, ars as alike as Ike and Mike. Humphrey and Muskie are still class sified as centrists out of suspicion that they don't quite mean what they say. There is a supposition that McGovern probably does. The one best qualified for the presidency may well be the one who is most hypocritical in his campaign—the one who least believes in his own glib solutions. Yet the hig question is not so much who will win the Democratic nomination or even the presidency, a sobering office. It is what the spectacle of an Indochina awash in blood and Communist repression would do to the United States and its future.

Would there be profound psychic damage? Vindicative second thoughts? A scapegoat hunt? Or would the American people, accustomed as they are to victory, shrug off this kind of defeat? Would they accept a Communist Indochina as something inevitebly cast up by the wave of the future? Would they agree with the left intellectuals that Communism offers the best hope for modernization of backward coun-

Nobody can be sure what the answers to these questions will be if hypothesis becomes reality. Past attitudes may not be much that this is a civil war fails to fit a situation in which the North has invaded the South with regular army divisions, some of them marched across a designated neutral zone. The spurious morality that condemns American bombing of the in-vaders but condones artillery attacks on the populated centers of the defenders, as well as deliberate terrorization of civilians, is not likely to stand the test of a spectacular defeat.

Submerged Spirit

Unless the traditional American spirit has been more submerged than seems possible under Viet Cong flag-waving youths, who seem to think that heads are for growing hair and campus windows for breaking, humiliating defeat will not be borne with resignation in this country. Nor will resentment be assuaged by the often repeated assurance that France survived its beating the magnificent posturing of De Gaulle couldn't conceal France's drop into the third class among

Perhaps, with luck, we shall yet escape this ordeal. Perhaps the South Vietnamese Army, with the help it is getting from American air power at Mr. Nixon's insistence, can absorb the present invasion as it did the Tet offensive. Perhaps the North Vietnamese, having thrown everything they have into this venture, will then sue for peace, overly optimistic as this seems is now approaching another critical decision in Vietnam. What to do if the enemy stops the invasion before or after the battle for the former Vietnamese capital of Hué, and offers to make a deal while Hanol is in control of a large part of the north of South Vietnam?

There have been some reliable sications through the emba sies in Paris and Washington that Hanol and the National Liberation Front will do just that, and such a pause in the fighting would put the Nixon administration and the Thieu government in Saigon in a very awkward situation.

So long as the Communist offensive goes on-and it is making alarming progress Nixon's policy is clear. He has stated that he would do "whatever is necessary," short of using atomic weapons or sending the American expeditionary force back into the battle on the ground, "until the North Vietnamese stop their offensive in South Vietnam."

But he has left himself an out. He has not said that he would continue his air and naval attacks until they pull back of the De-

Absinthe Saga

Regarding Waverley Root's remarks (IHT, April 13) on the absinthe cocktail he knew of during Prohibition days in New York, one may call attention to an absinthe cocktail in the 1840s. The principal ingredient was absinthe. Gulf state South-erners carried their taste for the Sazerac cocktail to San Francisco and to the mining camps, where the drink was well known during the next decade and beyond. A fur trader in New Orleans handed me, at my request, the formula the old blend, which he said he had gotten from a much older mixer. (This was in 1960). I am sorry that I have since lost it. However, there may be some well bred son of New Orleans who can, perhaps, replace the formula family files. FULMER WOOD.

Regarding Waverley Root's recent piece on absinthe: Yes, it's still made here in Spain, or something like it, anyway. But the book "Aphrodisiac Cookery," by Greg and Beverly Glazier and dedicated to "The One I Love," says "Absinthe may make the heart grow fonder, but its repeated use can lead to insanity and even death." It was outlawed in France, if memory serves, after a multiple murder committed by an "absinthe

Second, to permit con-Hanoi in substantial control of the north or even of Hué? the imposition of a Communist regime on the people of South Visinam against their will, with

"The only thing we have refused to do," Nixon said in his last Vietnam policy statement on April 28, "is to accede to the enemy's demand to overthrow the lawfully constituted of South Vietnam and to impose a Communist dictatorship in its nlace."

But When Le Duc Tho of the North Vietnamese Polithuro got back to Paris on April 30 to reopen the negotiations, he denied that he was demanding a Communist government in Saigon.

"In South Vietnam," he said in a formal statement, "what we want is a government of national harmony . . . we in no way want to impose a 'Communist regime' in South Vietnam such as Mr. Nixon has fabricated, but our people is also determined not to permit the American administration to establish a puppet power in its pay."

Well, we have heard all this before, but with the enemy inva-sion cutting South Vietnam in half and threatening Hué, the alternatives before the President are hard and even ominous. The farther south the enemy penetrates, the closer the armies get together and the more they move into populous civilian areas, where the President has to risk hitting the ARVN and the South Vietnamese people.

A Hard Bargain

He can insist on fighting the battle through, relying on the South Vietnamese and American air and naval power to smash the invasion and drive the enemy back of the DMZ, or, if the enemy pauses and offers to negotiate at Hué, he can agree to negotiate for a coalition government in Saigon, with the Communists and without Gen.

It is a hard bargain, but he is probably going to have to choose between fighting even harder while he withdraws his ground forces, or negotiating a new coalition government in Salgon. Nixon has been up against many hard decisions since he entered the White House, but this may be the hardest of all, especially since he has to try to reconcile the tough moral line he took at Secretary Connally's ranch in Texas, with his mission to Moscow this month to negotiate "a generation of peace," which is his main presidential election argument.

In the middle of his first term in the White House, Nixon offered to negotiate a settlement on the basis of the hard political and geographical facts: Who was in control of what in South Vietnam? And now Hanoi seems to be testing that proposition. Nixon gave three reasons in a nuclear arms limitation treaty. #### Crazy Horse Turns 21 With a New Revue

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss

PARIS, May 3 (IHT)—The Crary Horse Saloon is 21, This anniversary was celebrated by a special presentation of its revue, billed rather alarmingly as "Tonight's Sophisticated Debauchery. Alain Bernardin—against the advice of his friends—opened the cabaret of Wild West design in 1951 at 12 Avenue George V. It has been packed nightly ever sirise and was soon world famous. Acting as its manager and its director, he borrowed as its prin-cipal feature the striptease of american burlesque, revising the ideas and a worldly manner. Directorially, his revues are one-man shows. He selects the girls and the novelty numbers, supervises the costuming, lighting, music and décor, provides the material for the sketches and im-poses a smart pace on all that happens. He has carved out a niche for himself in theatrical history as a producer and as an eroticist. He has cultivated a style that is being imitated from Lebanon to Las Vegas. One remembers from over the years many of his happy conceits: Groucho Marx lost among the lively mummies of a pyramid, Lady Chatteriey on the first night of widowhood, the tableaux featuring Dod von Hamburg, mmortalized in a series of portraits by Ludwig Bemelmans. New Names The Bernsrdin glamorizing process extends to the renaming of his feminine personnel. In the present edition of the Craxy Horse follies you will encounter: Lova

Moor, a Frenchwoman recruited from the art studios; Polly Underground, a German-American brunette; Prima Symphony of Franco-Polish parentage; Bontia Super, a Franco-German who, according to the program, is an accomplished horsewoman; Sofia Palladium, a Franco-Italian ballet mistress; Rosa Fumetto, from Naples, who does a volcanic dance before a backdrop of Vesuvius; Capsula Popo, half Canadian, half Italian; Viola Vibrato from Tel Aviv: Miko Miku of Java; Franco Torpedo, an Australian smasher; Anna Portobello of Anglo-Polish extraction; Stella Patchouli, from Iran, who has insured her extraordinary tresses for £10,000 at Lloyd's; and Eva Bratislava from Prague, who would melt the Iron Curtain. Mr. Berpardin has picked his beauties: from near and far with his cus-tomary impeccable taste. They dance together in e Charleston, clad as Twiggys in cloche hats-and polka-dotted frocks The erotic and the comic alternate on the program. That veteran devourer of cigar butts, match boxes and starched shirt fronts, Chaz Chase, is back and his appetite is as insatiable as ever. Sometimes the two incredients are combined. In a spotlight of checkered colors the classic Three Graces whirl rather disgracefully and the gymnastics of two other graces would never be permitted at the YWCA. The festivities of the Crazy Horse Saloon's coming of age are being conducted for the most part in birthday suits.

The Bolshot ballet dancing "Swan Lake" is mildly mocked and there is a hi arious, all-out burlesque of the romantic operetta, "Gipsy," the Chatelet hit, with its dainty maids, hot-blooded tziganes, long-legged premier danseur and coy comedy relief. The show's most emphatic revelation, however, is Maruje Garrido, a voluptuous flamenco virtuosa of resounding voice, flowing dark locks and impressive heel pounding. #### A Change in Champagne ness effectively hides any finesse

By Jon Winroth

DARIS (IHT) -Champagne is perhaps the single most popular French wine in the world and it is constantly evolving in its striking diversity. According to recently released figures, a record 116.4 million bottles were sold in 1971, considerably more than even high-yield Beaujolais, the histro and table wine par excellence.

The sales represent a dangerous 14 percent increase over 1970. Dangerous because if the 1970 crop was enormous, replenishing low stocks, the 1971 harvest was so small (well below average, less than 40 percent of 1970's) that stocks once again face toorapid depletion, for champagne producers need a minimum lead of three years to cover normal aging.

But these are the problems of steadily mounting success. Ten years ago less than half as many bottles (not quite 58 million in 1962) were sold throughout the world.

It always comes as something of a shock how much champagne the French drink themselves, 71 percent of the bottles sold in 1971, or 82.4 million bottles versus only 34 million for the rest of the world.

In 1971 only 3.7 million bottles were imported in the United States,

Most champagne is a blend of about two-thirds blanc de noir grapes and one-third blanc de blanc which is entirely transformed by a secondary fermentation in the bottle to create the bubbles. But before it is sent out into the world, it also receives a dose of liqueur d'expédition, as much as 15 percent for brut, increasing with extra-dry, sec and demi-sec and growing even more in douz (up to 13 percent), which only the Far East seems to appreciate today.

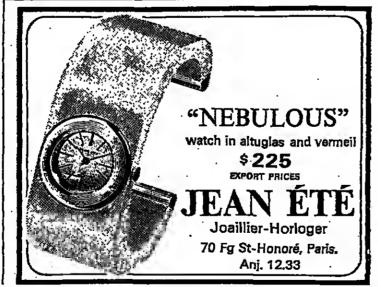

It may be a matter of taste how sweet you like your champagne but it is a matter of fact that the more you dose it the lower the quality of wine it is necessary to use since the sweet-of taste. In the latest and best development in champagne, the liqueur d'expédition has been done eway with entirely. So far as I know, the only producer, Legras at Chouilly in the Côte de Blancs, has actually brought out this wine, calling it brut intégral. However, his move definitely represents a new trend and other producers are preparing to follow Legras's example. Their labels may read brut intégral, brut zéro, brut 100 percent or brut de brut; the terms, known to connoisseurs all mean liqueur d'expédition. The result is extraordinary for it is impossible to hide any defects in this totally unsweetened wine. Only the finest champagne is used and a more clean wine with more delicacy, fruitiness and bouquet in perfect balance could not be imagined.

The Camden Festival Opens on Novel Note

By Henry Pleasants

T ONDON, May 3 (IHT).—The annual festival of the London borough of Camden can always be counted upon to come up with improbable operatio novelties; and it would be diffi-cult to imagine less probable fare than the double bill of Rachmaninoff's "Aleko" and Massenet's "La Navarraise," with which the 1972 festival was inaugurated at Collegiate Theatre, near the Euston Station, last night.

The operas date from 1893 and 1894 respectively, and what they have in common is a debt to "Cavalleria Rusticana," which had injected verismo into opera in 1890, Both are one-acters; both have to do with passionately dedicated women terribly wronged, and both require of their singers a lot of lung power to surmount a clamorous or-is the work of a 50-year-old theater master.

Joyce Blackham, in the title It's easy to have fun with "La role, hardly fulfilled Shaw's de-Navarraise," which is set in a Basque village in the midst of scription of Calve as "a living volcano." Nor was she quite up to bettle during the Carlist wars. the final scene where La Navar-G. B. Shaw, reviewing the preraise, with ber lover dead at her miere in London, found the feet, suddenly loses ber wits. This temptation irresistible, noting that "before the curtain had been up 30 seconds, not less than half a ton of gunpowder can have been consumed." But it is, in fact, an effective piece, Massenet knew exactly what he was about, was Massenet's concession to Calvé, whose mad scene in Thomas's "Hamlet" was one of her most spectacular triumphs. But short of duplicating Calvé or Geraldine Farrar, whose last new role at the Met this was in the seasoo of 1921-22, she gave a vocally and dramatically eloquent mere three-quarters of an hour

A lot of thought, devotion, hard work-and gunpowder-had gone into the preparation of both operas, and given the limited resources of staging and rehearsal, the accomplishment of the Opera Concerts Company under George Badacsonyi was admirable.

Where else, today, would one encounter Rachmaninoff and Massenet or a double bill?

SWISS ALUMINIUM LTD.

(Zurich, Switzerland)

The 23rd Annual Report by the Board of SWISS ALUMINIUM LTD. with the Balance Sheet and the Profit and Loss Account for 1971 as well as consolidated figures for the Group, was presented to shareholders at the Annual General Meeting on April 19th, 1972, and the following is a summary of the Report.

After the sudden change from a seller's to a buyer's market in 1970, a period of acute instability with regard to supply and demand followed in 1971. During the year, consumption in Europe suddenly fell by 3.4 percent, compared to 1970, but in the United States, a growth rate of 11.7 percent was achieved. The aluminium producers in the Western world used on average 35 percent of their capacity in 1971. According to conservative estimates, the stability of supply and demand would be restored only if the industry operated at 80 percent capacity.

Primary Aluminium resoluction in the West increased by 9 Primary Aluminium production in the West increased by 6.5 percent in 1971 (1970: 8.2 percent) and totalled 6,600,000 metric tons. The primary aluminium capacity of the Group at the end of the year amounted to 506,000 tons, compared with 490,000 tons at the end of 1970. Due to adverse market conditions, only 85 percent of this capacity was used during 1971. The total output of the thirteen reduction plants amounted to 415,000 tons, 10 percent less than in the previous year.

The plants for Semi-finished products increased production by 12 percent to 304,000 tors, whereas foil production declined by 2 percent to 61,600 tors. Bauxite Mining was commenced in Spring 1971 according to plan in Gove (Northern Australia) after six years of planning and construction work, and the first ship loaded at the heguning of June; production for the year was in excess of one

The construction of the Alumina plant at Gove is making encouraging progress. The first stage, with a capacity of 500,000 tons Al<sup>3</sup>O<sup>3</sup> per annum, will come on stream during the summer of 1972. Group production of alumina, including the Company's participation in FRIA, remained practically unchanged at 498,000 tons. Purchases from third parties covered the remaining requirements ing requirements.

■ Froduction of Electrodes in the Group's plants in the Valais, in Porto Marghera (Italy), Rheinfelden (Germany), Rotterdam and Lake Charles (USA) amounted to 394,000 tons in 1971, covering its own requirements and sales to third parties.

ering its own requirements and sales to third parties.

The output of electricity by the Groop's Power Stations, including its share in the production of affiliated companies, totalled 2.770 million kWh, as compared with 2.945 million kWh in the previous year. The volume of water available at the hydro-electric power stations was once again below the long-

The economy was favourable to the Packaging sector. The Boxal companies, with six plants in the EEC and EFTA, displayed brisk activity, and production rose by 10 percent. For the first time, turnover exceeded the Sw.Frs. 100 million mark. Once again, the high performance standards of Boxal products won first prize awards for Aerosol containers in the USA. The aluminium can plants processed 13,200 tons, 10 percent more than in 1970.

• Sales in the Plastics sector increased for malcic anhydride and rigid PVC film.

The operations of the German group were marked by the trends characteristic of the aluminium industry as a whole, and profitability was further impaired by the changes in the currency exchange rates within the EEC. In Italy, the group tried to achieve a long-term restoration of their position. The Consolidated Aluminum Corporation (CONALCO) merged with Phelps Dodge Aluminum Products Corporation and thus, the Group's participation in the enlarged CONALCO was reduced to 50 percent.

The ALUSUISSE Group's investment programme was carried out according to plan. For plants and equipment as well as for participations, a total of Sw.Frs. 566.6m. (Sw.Frs.551.4m. in 1970) was invested.

Group sales to third parties amounted to Sw.Frs. 2,050.8m.
 10.9 percent less than in the previous year,

Income from participations and loans decreased by Sw.Frs. 3,856,824 to Sw.Frs. 31,375,779. This reduction is due to lower dividends from subsidiaries and affiliates as well as reduced interests income an loans. On September 30, 1971 a loan was taken down in the amount of Sw.Frs. 100 million, repayable in 1986, at an interest rate of 6 1/4 percent.

Net profit for the year 1971 totalled Sw.Frs. 41,174,944. Together with Sw.Frs. 7,858,830 carried forward from 1970, the General Meeting had a total of Sw.Frs. 49,033,774 at its disposal. #### Gulf Catalyst Works With Leaded Gas

Gulf Oil says it has "discovered" a long-lived automotive muffler catalyst that may help make unleaded gasoline unnecessary. The catalyst reportedly will reduce nitrogen oxide in auto exhaust emissions without creating ammonia. The company says that until now no catalyst has been found to be effective on nitrogen oxide without forming ammonia as a by-prodoct and that was not susceptible to contamination by tetraethyl lead. "More evaluation work is necessary to firmly establish that this catalyst would meet all service requirements," officials say.

ITT Defers Bid for Australian Firm International Telephone & Telegraph is delerring its takeover bid for an Australian food company, Frozen Food Industries Ltd. (FFI), until the matter is debated by the Australian Parliament, which will soon discuss policy on foreign investments. III has offered to buy all FFI shares at $3.40 cash each. The takeover was recommended by all FFI directors except one. The government white paper is scheduled for release within three weeks. Since the takenter offer was announced April 28 there has been mounting criticism of the move. One senator has called for Senate committee examination of the takeover due to ITT's alleged use of political power in the United States.

Phelps Dodge expects 1972 carnings to be "slgnificantly above" 1971's $3.72 a share, but still sees first-half results trailing the $2.61 reported for the first half of 1971, president George E. Munroe told the annual meeting. He said that first-quarter earnings of $1.07 a share (compared with $1.04 a year ago) were doe to the fact that 1971 first-quarter sales were pushed up by strike hedge buying of copper.

Russia May Seek Monetary, Trade Role

By Clyde H. Farnsworth PARIS, May 3 (NYT) .- Qualified diplomats and internetional monetary specialists here believe that the Soviet Union is prepar-ing to raise the possibility of its participation in a new world monetary and trading system with President Nixon when he visits

Moscow this month.

The informants said that the Moscow leadership would probably tell Mr. Nixon that it is interested in having some say in the way the system develops.

Swiss Stiffen Rule on Loans

ZURICH, May 3 (AP-DJ).-The Swiss National Bank modified its regulations on capital exports toin its dollar reserves. .

Foreign borrowers in Switzerland, now will be required to convert 40 percent of the proceeds from Swiss franc loans at 3.88 francs to the dollar. This compares with converting 25 percent of such proceeds at 3.9265 francs as required previously, the bank said. The franc is allowed to move within a range of 3.9265 and 3.7535 against the dollar, with the mid-point at 3.84, but bas been trading at the upper end beginning in the second half of its range, reflecting the weakness of the dollar.

As hefore, all proceeds from foreign loans not converted with the national bank must also be exchanged into other currencies through commercial banks. Therefore, the effect of the new regulation is mainly to ensure that the national bank's dollar reserves decline at a faster rate. Though the bank doesn't disclose its dollar holdings, almost all; of its foreign currency reserves of 92 billion francs on April 30 were helieved to be denominated in dollars.

A reduction in dollar holdings through purchases of Swiss francs would help tighten domestic money liquidity further, bank-ing sources explained, so as to restrain inflationary pressures. Swiss capital exports are expected to exceed 7 billion francs this year, including foreign bond issues, medium-term notes and medium-term bank credits. In the first quarter of this year foreign bond issues totaled 715 million francs, up from 310 million francs in the first 1971 quarter.

The Soviet leaders see the Nixon visit as opening the way to westward trade expansion, which has become one of their high-priority objectives. Participation in the new mone-tary and trading system would simplify payments and other problems that check the growth of Soviet trade with the West

The monetary club of the last quarter-century has been open to any country that would follow its rules. The Communists stood apart in the postwar period because they were unwilling to accept the principles of multi-lateral free trade and currency convertibility, which were the un-derpinning of the Bretton Woods system.

The future role of gold and its price are known to be subjects of keen interest to the Russians, whose gold reserves are estimated in the West to be higher than any other country's except these of the United States.

There has been speculation in EEC and diplomatio circles that Mr. Nixon will be pressed by the Russians on any future intentions of the United States to raise the official price of gold again. The Paris talk centers on a new gold price of $55 an ounce being worked out as part of the mon-etary reform later in the decade. There is little doubt that the Soviet Union wants a substantial price increase, which would be equivalent to giving it additional reserves to support expanded trade with the West. One monetary official with broed acquaintances in Eastern Europe said, "I don't think the Soylet Union would take part in a new monetary system without. a substantial gold price increase." At the moment, however, little Is in it for the United States unless a secret gold price agreement were part of a global arrangement with the Soviet Union in which Russian concessions figured in other sectors. In this connection, the possibility of Soviet pressure on

Hanoi to end the war in Vietnam is mentioned in the speculation of some Paris observers. The worsening position for the Salgon regime in Vietnam and the recurrent talk about a $55 an ounce gold price are seen by market specialists as among the factors behind the new upwerd move in gold. On Monday the free market price got above $50 an ounce for the first time since World War II. The price today was $50.45 an ounce in London.

Why $55 an ounce? This is seen by monetary specialists as representing one of the options for dealing with gold in a way that would not necessarily make the metal a stronger element of world reserves. The United States believes in a lesser role for gold. At $55, it can he argued that the official gold price is simply

U.S. Delays Decision On Alaskan Pipeline

WASHINGTON, May 3 (Reu-ters).—Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton will put off his long awaited decision on the trans-Alaska oil pipeline until some tine in mid-May. The Interior Department had indicated, in issuing on March 20 a court-required analysis of the controversial 900-mile-long pipeline's impact on the en-vironment, that a decision would be announced 45 days later. But a spokesman for Mr. Morton said today an announcement would take another couple of weeks-at least."

Debenhams Bid Lapsed

LONDON, May 3 (AP-DJ).— United Drapery Ltd. said today its £138.5 million takeover bid for Debenhams Ltd. has been allowed to lapse. The bid was strongly opposed by Debenhams' directors and not enough shareholders accepted the offer to being brought into line with the market price as part of a legitimate technical adjustment to make the monetary system function more smoothly, one monetary official explained. The point is that the wider the gap between the market and the official price, the greater the danger of official central bank transactions in the gold market which would undermine the twotier system, in effect since 1968.

U.S. Unit Sets Price Ruling

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP) .-The Price Commission today froze all prices of more than half of America's largest firms and said they face price cuts end possible fines unless they quickly file overdue reports. Commission chairman C. Jackson Grayson jr. said rearly 1,600 firms have not filed required reports that were due on Monday. All of these firms are technically in violation of Price Commission regulations now. Mr. Grayson said each firm would be notified individually and given a grac period of five working days to file the reports.

After that, he said, the commission will order price cuts and ask the Justice Department to sue for civil fines of $2,500. He said it would be up to the Justice Department whether or not to seek multiple fines for individual Price Commission rules require that all firms with more than $50 million in yearly sales file quarterly reports. Firms that have raised prices must give details, and these that have not must Mr. Grayson said he estimates there are 2,954 firms that must file, and sald only 1,375 of them have submitted reports so far. A commission spokesman said a list of the roughly 1,579 delinquent firms would be made public within a few days.

EEC, U.K. Limit Exports of Steel

PARIS, May 3 (AP-DJ).—EEC and British steelmakers have agreed to limit exports to the United States for a three-year period, the French steel industry federation announced today.

It said the overall tonnage exported this year should not exceed 7.27 million tons. This figure will be increased 2.5 percent in 1973 and in 1971, the announcement said. Japan has entered into a similar agreement The commisment to limit ship-

Canada Sets Tighter Rules On Takeovers

Bid Would Have to Be Of 'Benefit' to Nation

By Jay Walz

"Our policy," Revenue Minister Herh Gray told the House of Commons in introducing the legislation, "is designed to insure that this country continues to develop as rapidly as possible in a way which is consistent with Canadian needs and aspirations and which safeguards our vital interests."

Tighter Reins

Mr. Gray's statement summarized the government's decision to keep a closer rein on this country's industrial development, which over the last 40 years has fallen largely into the hands of foreign investors and managers, mostly Americans.

The study on which Mr. Gray's report was based showed that total U.S. investment in Canada rose from $4.66 billion in 1930 to $28.03 hillion in 1967. The total U.S. investment-direct ownership, loans and bond issues- represents 80 percent of foreign holdings in Canada and 30 percent of all American holdings ebroad, the study says.

The extent of U.S. ownership and control ranges from more than half of the mining industry to almost all of the automobile manufacturing industry. Americans now own 700 Canadian com-

The report grows out of a 15year debate on how Canada might regain and retain control of its economy. The government proposals fall short of calling for buying back enterprises already owned by foreigners, who have so far been subject to very few rules and coodifions.

However, foreigners would be screened when and if they try to expand or take over new South would invite a game on round two of the bidding and North would accept.

However the actual bidding was more complex because North-South were using the Precision System. South's artificial opening showed 16 points or more, and North's double of one spade was negative, showing moderate strength.

On the next round, North used a spade cue-bid as a waiting maneuver, and the partnership eventually reached four hearts. It is easy to see that three notrump would have been made exactly, but four hearte promised a better match-point score.

A Phallic Novel

By Alberto Moravia. Translated from the Italian by Angus Davidson. Farrar, Straus & Giroux. 353 pp. $7.95.

Reviewed by Leslie Fiedler

TO write about Alberto Moravia. In "Two," however, he finally is especially difficult for me since for the past decade I have had a sense of him as a figure no longer interesting or even available to anyone committed to the future possibilities of the novel rather than its past achievements. Moravia is the kind of writer who belonged to the history of the novel from the moment his first book appeared.

Moravia has no descendants except himself—only innumerable ancestors, ranging from Flaubert and Turgenev, whom he would be glad to claim, to Maupassant and D'Amunzio, whom he probably would be embarrassed to ac-knowledge.

Yet even if he does not beget, he survives. My God, how he survives! His would be an extraordinary feat any place; but is especially astonishing in Italy, where writers seem sometimes to do everything hut write. Moravia, however, has been publishing since 1929 and shows no signs of slowing down. Even in English translation his books have been appearing for 40 years, their titles generally travestied in English all the way from "Le Ambizioni Sbagliate," published here in 1937 as "The Wheel of Fortune," to his latest novel, "To e Lui," renamed for obscure reasons "Two."

His new "phallic" novel deals with the basic themes which have obsessed him since *Conjugal Love" at least: Art and Sex, Sublimation and Desublimation, Male and Female. He is so exclusively concerned in his fiction with sex, Moravia has assured us, because only in their sexlives do superurban men still in-habit "nature," and only in "nature" are we all one. surely, is the essential clue to what motivates Moravia as a "Two" deals with the rather in . consequential adventures, and the oversubtle reflections on those adventures, of a second-rate screenwriter who finds himself bound to an aging and unattractive wife and a less and less rewarding career. He feels he has been condemned to both by his recalcitrant and unruly flesh, and that if he could only "sublimate" his sexual drives he would become one of the rulers and heroes of the world rather than the shlemiel and victim he is. He hopes that once "sublimated," he will be able to direct as well as write a revolutionary film, financed by a group of wealthy and supercilious young Maoists; but in the end, he is shamed and humiliated by them, overwhelmed hy his indomitable phallus with which he conducts a dialogue throughout.

Moravia has remained a halfhearted (and until the present book fundamentally genteel) pornographer because he wants to be a popular writer without ceasing to be a sophisticated city dweller. But sex, as he understands it, is too abstract to be mythological; and his venture is therefore doomed. Yet it is hard. not to admire the dogged way in which he has kept trying to make his essentially abstract concerns seem actual flesh and blood.

abandons even the pretense that what intrigues him is dialogue between human beings; since his scenario writer-obsessed with the notion that only "desublimated". men succeed in the world, but forever the slave of his swollen superphallus—can talk to no one who does not share his distended skin. And with him, the secret. is out: what has always concerned Moravia is the dialogue within the single self between Mind and Body, Spirit and Flesh, Ego and Id, or, as he puts it this time around, between a Man and his own Penis. Moravia's latest novel thus eems rather more technically innovative than his earlier works for he feels obliged to make his "phallic" antagonist at least as articulate and witty as the failed artist who is his protagonist. But, of course, a similar device was employed in a similar way long before. Moravia invents nothing ever, only recapitulates; and here he turns out to be doing variations on the theme somewhat more ingeniously, though less pretentiously, handled some 200 years ago by Diderot in Les Bijoux Indiscrets."

Finally, however, what remains in the mind out of Moravia's books are not his attempts at translating art and politics downward in sexual metaphors. Nor is it even his pose of rendering "realistically" the surfaces of popular life, as in "The Woman of Rome." What continues to haunt us is the nostation and released to the foliation and the surface and the su melancholy of the fiction in which he renders frankly the dialogue within—as in "The Woman of Rome." What continues to haunt us is the nostalgia and melancholy of the novelette, "Agostino," and even earlier short stories like "A Sick Boy's Winter." In these, we hear the anthentic, the inward Moravian voice, which speaks always in the plaintive tones of a sickly, mother-obsessed bourgeois boy, If we love rather than respect him, it is for the sake of that boy. who remains alive some place deep within the successful author. One imagines that little Alberto Pincherle, not yet rebaptized "Moravia," staring forever through the iron grille which separated his family garden from the street, and trying to imagine what life can really be like for all those inscrutable Poor People going about their business Out There. Moravia may .. have introduced no new techniques into Italian narrative, and he may remain somehow bafflingly provincial But whenever he evokes the shame : ... and terror of the European bourgeois looking for Real Life, i.e., his own Unconscious, in an encounter with a prostitute or the seduction of innocence next -door, he makes a real contribution to the fiction of our dving century, unforgettable in its own minor way.

Leslie Fiedler teaches at the University of Buffalo. His collected essays were published last year. This review is abridged from his article for The New York Times Book Review.

But Orr & Co. were contained in the second period. Rarely did they look like the skaters who had swept the last five regularseasou meetings between the teams, winning by an aggregate score of 24-4. Instead the Rangers had the good shots and muffled the Bostonians' power play, with Walt Tkaczuk starring.

Rod Gilbert tied the gama on a two-on-one break with a line drive on which Ed Johnston, the Bruin goalie, had to chance, Meanwhile, Gilles Villemure, replacing Ed Giacomin, was tough in the Rangers' goal. But he was helpless on the winning goal in the final period. The Bruins had two-man advantage—the New Yorkers in the box were Tkaczuk their top penalty-killer, and Bruce MacGregor, another quality penalty-killer.

Key Face-Off

Phil Esposito beat Pete Stemkowski in a face-off near Villemure (Esposito earlier had repeatedly won face-offs against Tkaczuk), and Mike Walton took the disk. He shoved it in front of Ken Hodge. The only Ranger Uear Hodge was Villemure, and Hodge pushed the shot home. With 53 seconds to go, Vic Had-

French Sports Group Lacks IOC Recognition

Needed to Compete at Munich

PARIS, May 3.-France may not be able to participate in the Munich Olympics because its recently constituted central sports organization has not been recognized by the International Olympic Committee (IOC). The difficulty stems from the dissolution of the French National Olympic Committee last December and its replacement by a National Olympic Committee of French Sport (CNOSF). The change was wrought in the midst of the "amateurism" struggle that preceded the Sapporo Olympics, and the new group has not applied for recognition from the IOC. Without that recognition, a national organization cannot nominate athletes to the Olympics.

Count Jean de Beaumont, an IOC vice-president, said he has received a letter from IOC president Avery Brundage confirming that without recognition, France will not be at Munich, De Beaumont was a vice-president of the old French National Olympiu Committee, but opposed the changes and resigned. Yesterday. De Beaumont informed the CNOSF that it must submit av application.

The Request CNOSF president Claude Col-

lard said today, "We will address our request for recognition to the IOC and I believe it should not raise the slightest problem." The situation will probably be discussed, and perhaps resolved, in a meeting of the IOC executive committee scheduled for Lausanne, Switzerland, May 24-25. However, at Lausanne today,

Monique Berlioux, the IOC director of information, said the CNOSF probably will not be recognized in time for Munich, but she suggested that the IOC would try "by all means" to have French athletes participate on an individual basis She said the CNOSF contained

McNally's 3d Shutout Tops White Sox

NEW YORK, May 3 (UPI) .-Dave McNally, who won 21 games last season with a sore arm is healthy and American League batters are suffering the consequences. The Baltimore lefthander hurled a four-hitter last night and racked up his third shutout of the year in four starts as the Orioles beat the Chicago White Sox, 3-0, at Baltimore. "He was almost unhittable tonight," said catcher Andy Etcherberren. "He must have made only three bad pitches. He pitched ell last season with a bad arm and won 21 games. Maybe he can win twice that many with a good arm," Strained Tendons

McNally pitched most of last season with strained tendons in his left elbow. He missed 38 days of the season and experienced soreness whenever he pitched. "I expected to do well at the start of this season," McNally said, "but I certainly didn't anticipate three shutouts in four starts. My first two shutouts of the year (against New York and Cleveland) were because of the strike but now the hitters have caught up."

McNally got batting support from Boog Powell. Powell cracked a two-run homer in the first finning and doubled and ecored in the third on a single by Paul

Kissinger Countdown

White House announced today that Henry Kissinger has just returned from B secret trip to the moon. Ron Ziegler said that Kissinger was the fourth crewman on Apollo-16 and spent 20 hours exploring the moon for President Nixon, who plans to go there just before Election Day.

How Kissinger managed to pull it off is one of the best news atories of our time. The White House had an-Buchwald nounced that Mr. Kissinger was going to Hollywood to attend the 1972 presentation of the Academy Awards.

When he did not show up at the awards, the Western White House at San Clemente said he had a cold and was being purs-ed back to health at the home of Tuesday Weld.

A check at Tuesday Weld's house revealed that Kissinger had left on Wednesday with his girl, Friday, hut no one knew where he had gone.

A rumor started by the CIA indicated that Kissinger had returned to Peking to pick up his dry cleaning. But Chou Enlai's press secretary said he hadn't seen Kissinger in weeks, and if he was in Peking the Chinesa didn't know about it.

The White House correspondents started pressing Ziegler as to Kissinger'a whereabouts. Ziegler said with a straight face. "He went to Moscow to talk to the people in the Kremlin about President Nixon's trip."

This sounded logical, but when the Washington newspaper, magazine and TV people checked with their Moscow correspondents, they hit B stope wall.

A press secretary for Brezhnev said oo ooe had seen Kissinger in Moscow, and as far as the Soviets knew, be hadn't been to Leningrad or Kiev, either.

Now angry, the White House correspondents attacked Ziegler for lying to them.

Ziegler said lie had made a mistake and that Klssinger was really in Paris holding secret scheduled.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The talks with the North Vietnamese delegation.

> While the American press was being led on the wild goose chase, Kissinger was down at Cape Kennedy dressed in white coveralls. disguised as one of the workers who would help the astronauts into Apollo-16. At the last minute, just before the hatch was closed, Kissinger jumped into the capsule and said, "I am on a secret mission for the President, Let's get out of here." The astronauts, who hadn't been in on the plan, protested that there wasn't enough food for four men on the space journey. "Don't worry," Kissinger said. holding up a bottle of orange juice. 'I brought my own Tang'."

While they were hurtling toward the moon. Kissinger briefed the astronauts on what they were to do. He told them to go about their business on the moon as if nothing had happened. Under no condition were they to focus their TV cameras on him, and while they were picking pp rocks and setting up scientific ex-periments, he would make arrangements for the President's visit to the moon.

The astronauts played their parts perfectly, and there wasn't erson watching TV who susnected that Kissinger was on the moon at the sama time as the Apollo-16 mission,

The only time the secret was endangered was when Kissinger tripped over a wire on the moon and messed up a million-dollar experiment. Fortunately all space suits look alike, and everyone thought it was astronaut John Young who goofed.

On the way back, Kissinger splashed down first by parachute into Key Biscayne, and was picked up out of the water hy Bebe Rebozo.

It was only after Kissinger made a full report to the President that Ziegler admitted to Henry's true whereabouts for the past 10 days. Thanks to one of the hest kept secrets of the decade, Ziegler confirmed that the President would be able to go to the moon this fall as

Peter Fonda: "I want my daughter to be President. And Jane can be Queen Mother."

A Teen-Ager At Last

ST. GATIEN, France (IHT).—At first Peter Fonds was the clean-cut prep school type striving, he has said, "to be the ultimate David Eisenhower." Motorcycles, acid and "Easy Rider" followed. Today, on location in Normandy for Robert Wise's Two People." he looks like the boy next door, 1972 style, with bright milk-fed teeth and plenty of strain showing around the big blue eyes. Over lunch, he is relaxed, talky and full of broad

"At 32, I'll he 13 Dext week, B teen-ager Bt last," he says. "I've suffered and won and I'm feeling great.

"I have a good time, I really do. I wish everyone could have as good a time. If I was cleaning streets I wouldn't put it down. I'd have the streets really clean so people used to walking on dirty streets could enjoy it."

To show he means it, Fonda tells about the time he sailed his ketch to Hawaii and was warned of imminent arrest for alleged possession of machine guns and $250,000 worth of drugs. Instead of being arrested (he was completely clean) he ended up with his picture, mop in hand, in B Hawaii paper. It had been snaped by the dockmaster, who was terribly impressed by the fact that Fonds was the only saflor around who picked up after himself.

"So you see." he says. "I could have a good time cleaning the streets. I refuse to have a bad time, my nose and lungs have R had time."

Documentary

Since becoming B film maker Fonds has learned to read memos on film executives' desks upside down. The latest memo said, "We're not interested in social comment, we're interested in entertainment," so he is mulling a caper film. But what he really wants is to make B documentary about the earth:
"The only problem is I want to show it free—one doesn't charge for home movies. I want to shoot it everywhere in the world and show it everywhere, I want to discuss pollotion, not just jet exhaust but prejudice, nationalism, fear-which I think is pollution of the mind.

"I want to show we're all infected, we must respond not as Americans or Chinese, or as any divided unit, but as earth. Otherwise there will be no air to carry the response when people have understood."

After directing and starring in "The Hired Hand" and the just-completed "Idaho Transfer," Fonda is employed on "Two People" as B mere actor.

"It feels merely wonderful," he says, leaning back in his chair. "I will admit I lamented many times, should I do B simple film in traditional style, Anyway, I needed the bread for all the freaks who worked for me in the last gig." He is, make no mistake, a very serious film maker, Anyone who attributes the success of "Easy Rider" to dumb luck should listen to Fonda explain how carefully calculated it all was. The phrase "self-indulgence" has been used, especially about "The Hired Hand," but he interprets self-indulgence as putting one's personality in a film and this, he says, is essential for today's

"When I lectured to kids about Easy Rider' I thought they would ask about its philosophy, but all they wanted to know was whether we were smoking real marijuans. I said is that all you want to know, is that where your head's at? Then I realized it was important to them that we put our personal thing into it. I call it the Real Marijuana Doctrine, like the Nixon Doctrine. Yes, boys and girls, it's real marijuana, it's real Funds lives in the Santa Monica hills, just below Charlton Heston, with Susan, his wife of 11 years, and their two children, Bridget, 8, and Justin 5 1/2. He says he is campaigning all the time, but he does not work for specific groups and refuses to give money ("We give what we have, I'm an actor")

"Who am I working for? I'm working for my children. I want my daughter to be President. And Jane (his sister), he added, "can be Queen Mother."

Fonds is the first to mention the other Fondss, perhaps because he figures the subject is inevitable, possibly because it's hard to hury very deep B family past that includes a fivetimes-married father, B mother's suicide and his own attempted suicide, aged 10, hy shooting himself in the stomach.

The Past

Fonda will bring up the past (he got out of Army service by calling on his family background of emotional instability and by saying he would shoot any sergeant who mentioned Henry Fonda. For good measure he stalked out of the examining room and into the street stark naked). But he refuses to be saddled with it.

"I was born with the curse of heing somebody's son and people expected something from me, I strove to be what they expected without knowing what it was. Now I don't care, I want to be me. I want to live my own life and damn the torpedos.

Jane Ponda's problem in reconciling her career with her politics draws sympathy from her brother-"It's her guilt and her willingness to be involved. God bless her"-but it's not his

"You don't have to reject your past. If you did I would have to commit suicide because I made Tammy and the Doctor or do a Paul Newman and take out an ad to apologize for a picture I've made. I've been wrong about a lot of things but I don't humiliate myself, I have no guilt.

"I'm B lucky man, I have a job I like doing, I have B terrific family. I have all sorts of things happening. Too had the rest of the world doesn't." Probably having a terrific family is the most important. "Yes," Fonda says, "With my family it probably is."
